The German pair of Hauke Freer and Matthias Reiling are no strangers to releasing quality long-format albums and while rising through a discerning community of DJ's have previously released three consecutive albums on tastemaker label Delusions of Grandeur culminating in 2017's "Listen To Your Heart".

Their latest and fourth studio album set to be released on 'Night Time Stories', the London based sister label to the coveted 'LateNightTales', marks a notable move towards the downtempo dynamic of artists like Nightmares on Wax, DJ Shadow and Portishead. Artists that have all played a strong influence in Session Victim's variety of output over the last decade. 'Needledrop' provides a suite of both uplifting and easy-listening moments, refined and understated individually, yet cohesively crafted with the honest musicianship and inarguable credentials that we know of production duo Session Victim.
